FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

PARIS, March 1.

THE Affair of Jullers and Bergue is but little talk'd of at Court; all that we know of the Matter, is, that Meaſures are taken for the Steps which the Circumſtances of Affairs may render neceſſary in thoſe two Dutchies. The Number of Troops quarter'd in the 3 Biſhopricks, Metz, Toul and Verdun) which hold themſelves in Readineſs to march as ſoon as they receive Orders, are computed at 30,000 Men. Count de Belle-Iſle, who is ſtill at Court, has had ſeveral private Conferences with the King's Miniſters; but the Publick is not inform'd of the leaſt Title of what paſs'd in them. However, it is publickly ſaid, that in caſe it ſhould be neceſſary to make any Movements towards the Lower Rhine, the Count is to have the Command of the Troops on that Side; to which we may add, that he has receiv'd Inſtructions ſuitable to the Events that may happen, ſo that he may follow them whenever Occaſion requires. The Count is to ſet out in a ſhort time for the three Biſhopricks, where he is to review the Troops, eſpecially the Horſe, moſt of which is remounted. It is thought that the Plan he has drawn up for fortifying Metz will be put in Execution this Year.

They now write from Paris in poſitive Terms, that the Treaty of Commerce, towards which ſome Overtures have been made, between Great-Britain and France, will not take Place, the Difficulties that this Affair has met with being inſuperable. The Court of France ſeems piqued at the Obſtacles raiſed on this Occaſion by that of Great Britain. To this Diſſatisfaction is attributed the Step that France has juſt taken in renewing the Arret of 1701, which was iſſued at a Time when Lewis the Fourteenth was the moſt incens'd againſt Great-Britain. The Earl of Waldegrave having been inform'd that Letters Patent had been ſent to all the Ports of the Kingdoms, went directly to Verſailles to acquaint M. Amelot with the Surprize he was in at the Renewal of this Arret; which Surprize that Ambaſſador ſhid was the greater, as this Decree was made at a Time when there was the greateſt Animoſity between the Two Kingdoms, whereas they were at preſent, and had been for ſeveral Years, in ſuch a State of Friendſhip, as that the Decree of 1701 had not been rigorouſly executed. To which M. Amelot anſwer'd, that if there had been any Forbearance in the Execution of this Decree, it had been made uſe of with a View of obtaining ſome Favour from the Engliſh towards the French trading Ships, but that theſe laſt were treated in Great Britain with greater Severity than they had ever been, the Merchandize of France, which is permitted to be ſold there, being ſo loaded with Duties, that the Merchants very frequently loſe by what is ſent thither: Nay, ſo rigorouſly are they treated in Great Britain, that they are always forced to make Uſe of Brokers, to whoſe Courteſy and Diſcretion they are obliged to ſubmit. M. Amelot alledged ſtill other Grievances, and concluded in repreſenting, that ſince Severity was carried to ſuch a Length in Great-Britain, it was but natural for the King to direct the Execution of the Decrees in force relating to that Kingdom. Some People think that the Renewal of the Arret of 1701 is the Means which France makes uſe of to oblige Great-Britain to conclude the Treaty of Commerce with her; and are the more inclinable to believe this to be Fact, becauſe that Arret was iſſued ſoon after the Treaty was ſet on Foot. This Circumſtance is likewiſe taken Notice of, that at the very Time when the Britiſh Ships and Merchandizes were prohibited from entering into the French Ports, thoſe of Holland were, without Interruption, permitted to be brought in; nay, even the Cloths and Stuffs of that Country, for which the French have really no greater, nor more ſincere Regard, than they have for England.

Extract of a Letter from Calvi in the Iſland of Corſica, dated February 7, N. S.

The Malecontents are ſtill Maſters of the Field, and there is room to believe that they have great Intelligences and many Partizans in all the Towns of this Iſland. The 5th Inſtant an Officer arriv'd here from the Governor of Ajaccio, demanding a ſpeedy Reinforcement, becauſe the Inhabitants of that Town ſeem'd ſo ſtrongly inclin'd to favour the Malecontents, that he had great Room to fear that they would attempt ſome Coups d'Eclat; upon which the French Man of War and Bark that were in this Port were immediately ſent thither; and we are impatient to know what has paſs'd there ſince.

The Marquiſs de Maillebois is expected forthwith, in order to take upon him the Command of the French Troops in the Room of the late Count de Boiſgeau. Some People flatter themſelves that the Arrival of the Marquiſs, with the ſix Battalions more which the French Court has reſolv'd to ſend over, will make the Malecontents return to their Duty, or at leaſt incline them to liſten more readily to Terms of Accommodation; but on the other Hand, as the Country which is not in the Poſſeſſion of the Malecontents is not ſufficient for quartering ſo many Troops, and as the Corſicans are advantageouſly poſted, very well diſciplin'd and inured to War, it is fear'd that it will be abſolutely impoſſible to ſubdue them if they perſiſt in their Reſolution not to ſubmit to the Republick of Genoa upon any Condition whatſoever.

LONDON, March 31.

At the Cloſe of laſt Month was brought from Pinner in Middleſex, to be inter'd at Harrow on the Hill, the Corpſe of a young Gentlewoman of 12,000 l. Fortune. Her only Siſter, coming Couch was obſerv'd to get ſomething into her Mouth; and being come to Harrow was very ill, and ask'd for ſome Water: She drank once a Pint, and then ſaid, Well, now my Buſineſs is done, I have taken
